AGED MAN TORTURED WORSE THAN IN DAYS OF SPANISH INQUISITION

GROVER CLEVELAND PAYS ELOQUENT TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF MORTON

By Associated Press.
Nebraska City, Neb., Oct. 28—The statue of J. Sterling Morton, secretary of agriculture in Cleveland's cabinet, was unveiled today. Grover Cleveland made the principal address.

Mr. Cleveland said in part: "I have not come to the surviving family of J. Sterling Morton, and to those who were his intimate friends and neighbors, for the purpose of bringing from afar superfluous recital of his virtues and mental endowments. You who, within the sacred precincts of his home, knew the warmth of his love, you, who daily found cheer and delight in the sunlight of his steady, constant friendship, and you, his immediate fellow-citizens, who have been stirred to admiration and attachment of his unselfish and effective labor in behalf of those with whom his lot was cast, need no words of mine to arouse in your minds the sentiments which befit this commemorative occasion. Even though all were silent, the beautiful monument here erected would itself eloquently signify the love and friendship and admiration which are today revived by the recollection of an affectionate, dutiful and useful life.

"But I am not here without a mission. I would fain interpret this monument's message to me, as it recalls my close companionship and cooperation, in the discharge of the highest public duty, with the man we honor. I am here to give evidence concerning the things he revealed to me in the light of that companionship and cooperation. This is but to testify to his lofty civic righteousness, his simple and sure standards of public morality, his stern insistence on official honesty, his sturdy adherence to opinions deliberately and conscientiously adopted, his generous concession to others of every result of their efforts and his passionate desire to serve the best interests in his fellow-countrymen.

"I am not required, for the sake of exaggerated tribute, to insist that in the mere possession of these virtues our friend was distinguished above all others. But it must be said that he stood out from amidst a vast congregation of others who believed and knew the right, because in defense of the right as he believed and knew it, he was willing to fight and suffer, not only in a small arena of private and social existence, but in the fiercer, deadlier amphitheatre of public life. He believed that the same care and good faith exacted by a trust undertaken for an individual were due to the people from those who assumed official responsibilities; and he believed that waste in public expenditure was sin. These beliefs were not in his mind mere comfortable sentiments, mildly stimulating to self-righteousness, but were active incentives to battle.

The noxious atmosphere of governmental extravagance could not blind his eyes; nor could the ridicule of those who had learned to scoff at official economy, or the threats of those who perfidiously contrived to appropriate public funds to private gain, drive him to compromise with wrong. Bold and defiant in the midst of it all, he took brave counsel of conscience, as did the dauntless Father of the Reformation, who cried out to his tormentors: 'I cannot and will not retract anything; for to act against conscience is unsafe and unholy.'

"Thus it was that our friend's fine moral perception and his love of rectitude shed a bright and unwavering light on the path of official obligation; and thus did his clear discernment of duty lend impressiveness to his efforts towards the highest usefulness in public office. It was, however, his keen intelligence and his worldly wisdom that taught him that an effective equipment for the best public service needed a large admixture of sterner stuff; and there was never a servant of the people, who, in their cause, met misrepresentation and unjust accusation with more fortitude, or saw the submergence of friendly relations with more resignation, or dealt harder blows to dishonesty and wrong, whether lurking with friends or foes.

"As a pioneer among the settlers of the great West, he espoused with affectionate zeal every movement or interest that promised its development and prosperity, but even this he did with such strict subordination to the commands of conscience, and with such courageous reliance upon the strength that comes of clear conviction, that in advocating his beliefs on economic and financial topics, he did not hesitate to attack the opinions and prejudices of those with whom he had made his home. There was no bitterness of heart in all this; but there was the positive, rugged earnestness of a strong, determined man, quite content to trust time and sober second thought for his vindication.

"Our friend loved Nature with constancy and delight; and through Nature he was led to a reverent love of the Maker of the Universe. He

HALLOWEEN PROCLAIMED BY MAYOR

Next Tuesday, the 31st of October will be Halloween, or All Saints Day. In ancient days the chief symbol of Halloween was the lighting of bonfires in each household, but of later years this feature is ceased to be observed. On this day the fairies are supposed to be unusually active and propitious. It is considered a good time to forecast the future, especially in affairs of the heart, to which many a young maiden, and others not so young, could testify if they would.

While the young ladies remember the festival principally in trying to discover their future husband, the ubiquitous small boy is not to be denied or overlooked. True to nature the boys' celebration takes a more violent form. Masquerading and belaboring each other with stockings filled with flour is considered de rigeur. Throwing corn and cabbage stalks at inoffensive doors and windows find great favor. Removing shutters and gates, and concealing them, is voted the proper thing. Changing signs, so that a dentist is discovered to be a blacksmith, and a milliner is selling hardware, is considered a crowning touch of humor.

The boys have had their fun on Halloween from time immemorial, and will doubtless be up to the old tricks next Tuesday. Sometimes, however, they become a trifle thoughtless, but as it only comes once a year, and there is nothing of maliciousness in their sport, they are generally forgiven.

In anticipation of the approaching holiday Mayor P. H. Shields has issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas, Tuesday evening next is Halloween, and the thoughtless are frequently inclined on such occasions, to go beyond the bounds of proper restraint in the commission of deeds injurious to themselves and their neighbors and to their neighbor's property.

"Now, I, P. H. Shields, mayor of the City of Clarksburg, W. Va., do hereby proclaim and give notice that any person or persons, known to maliciously and intentionally destroy, mutilate, deface or remove property not rightfully their own, will be arrested and fined.

"Given under my hand this 28th day of October, 1905.

P. H. SHIELDS, Mayor."

LOCAL BANKS HAVE THE MONEY

The West Virginia State Bank Commissioner, S. V. Matthews, is radiant over the fact that the banks of West Virginia show an increase of three millions of dollars this year over the year preceding. Why shouldn't Clarksburg be luminous over the fact that she has furnished most of this increase? Clarksburg has one bank organized in April of this year that within the last few days passed the two million dollar mark in assets, and has other close seconds.

ELEVATOR FALL HURTS FIVE

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 28—By the fall of an elevator in the Globe tailoring establishment early this morning five employees were seriously and perhaps fatally injured. The injured are Johanna Cavalege, Frank Wulffhorst, Anna Hara, Louis Sacks and Anna Watts.

STAR COURSE HAS OPENED BRILLIANTLY

"You saw stars" is generally an accepted slang phrase, but it was a most emphatic truth last night to a select audience of Clarksburg people who had gathered at the court house for the opening entertainment of the Y. M. C. A. Stellar Course. Of course they expected to see stars, but these were without question of the first magnitude, such as are only seen at rare intervals.

Miss Jeanette Broomell showed rare talent in her numerous and various readings and captivated the house with her charming personality. Her rendition of the child story, "Edith's Burglar," by Frances Hodgson Burnett, was exquisite and it will be a long time before her reading "The Last Day of School" will be forgotten. The air was ringing with encores after every selection and Miss Broomell has won her way into the hearts of the Clarksburg people for all time.

Miss Helen B. Reed, harpist, also entranced the audience. An attractive young woman sitting by her beautiful instrument, playing the most exquisite melodies with the touch and finish of a true artist, was indeed a most attractive feature of the program and one which the patrons of the course thoroughly appreciated.

Miss McCauley varied the program with her beautiful rich contralto voice and her selections were exactly what could be understood and enjoyed.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., under whose management the star course is being run this winter, felt they had reason to congratulate themselves upon the brilliant opening of this season's course. Only one thing more is needed to make them perfect—a nice, large, clean, well ventilated, attractive and convenient hall in a new Y. M. C. A. building. How about having such a hall next season?

BIG TOURNAMENT HELD AT LOST CREEK

The big tournament was held at Post's Grove, Lost Creek, Saturday afternoon. The day opened auspiciously, with dark clouds and a slight rain. For a time it looked as though the tournament would have to be postponed, but towards noon the rain ceased and the skies cleared up sufficiently to assure the large crowd assembled, that they would have an afternoon of rare sport.

The famous horsemen from Harrison and Lewis counties were on the field armed cap-a-pie with lance in rest, their fiery steeds pawing the ground as if impatient to start on their mission of love and honor. Five beautiful crowds are to be carried away by the victorious Knights, and each valiant warrior will present one to his fair mistress, in whose colors he rides and for whose honor he jousts, as he crowns her queen of love and beauty.

Additional prizes were offered for the first, second and third best exhibition of horsemanship and for the speediest horse. Altogether the day was one to be long remembered, and the evening brought to a close the most successful tournament ever held in Harrison county.

RECEIVER APPOINTED

In circuit court Judge Charles W. Lynch has appointed Charles W. Furbee receiver with bond at $3,000 to take charge of the funds derived from the sale of one-sixteenth of the oil in 50 acres of land at Salem. The appointment of the receiver is in connection with a suit by Marcus V. Davisson against Thomas B. Smith and others.

JOHN DENHAM GIVEN SURPRISE BIRTHDAY EVENT

Among the specially enjoyable and well planned social events of the week must be chronicled the surprise anniversary reception at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Denham, on Wednesday evening. An unique feature and one that added much to the zest of the occasion, was the fact of Mr. Denham's not being "let into the secret," so to speak, until he returned from his office work at half past eight. Then it was that he "bolted right into" a throng of upward of half a hundred of his friends—his cozy home from dining room to parlor a perfect blaze of light and floral decorations. Mrs. Denham had skillfully arranged all the details in his absence, and, when he opened the door, Mr. Stuart Reed, on behalf of the family and the assembled guests halted him at the threshold and in a short address welcomed him to his own home on his thirtieth birthday.

After he had received the congratulations of his friends, Mr. S. R. Bentley stepped forward and announced that he had been delegated by Mr. Denham's official associates, to present a token of their esteem which he did in a most appropriate little speech. The present was a beautiful silk umbrella with handsomely mounted handle. To these speeches Mr. Denham responded, expressing his surprise and delight and assuring all of his great appreciation of the honor done him.

The remainder of the evening was one in which every "minute was jeweled with a joy." There were recitations, musical selections and refreshments—the latter most abundant and delicious. The several tables from which these delicacies were dispensed were presided over by Mrs. A. K. Thorn, Miss Cora Smith and Mrs. S. F. Reed.

Numerous useful and appropriate presents from Mr. Denham's friends were received during the evening, and all present carried away fragrant memories of a happy occasion.

GRAFTON EAGLES SOAR ALOFT

The Grafton Aerie of Eagles had a big time last night. Ten new birds were shown how to use their wings. Between 80 and 100 members of the order were present, and a great time was had by all. Our own Mr. Joseph Cohen, worthy president of the Clarksburg aerie, who is something of a high flyer when he gets started, was in charge of the initiation. They do say that the way Joe had those Eagles flying had Knaubenshne and airship beat a block.

Dance at Elkbridge

The semi-weekly ball at Elkbridge hall, was given last night. The regular hours of dancing prevailed. The hall has been repainted and decorated lately, and is now an ideal place for dancing. Prof. Crow and his merry men blew and scraped and pounded out the melodious waltzes and two-steps.

Members of the family of Eljah Flesher, who resides near West Millford, tell an astounding story about the conduct of some of Flesher's neighbors toward him. But a week ago some of them made complaint to the humane officer to the effect that Flesher did not properly and humanely treat his thirteen-year-old son, who is paralyzed in one limb from the hip down, and the officer went to Flesher's home to find him gone with the boy to Dr. Winfield's, at Johnstown, for treatment. Flesher intends to take the boy to Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore Monday, where he will remain for treatment and cure, no matter what may be the expense.

Neighbors asserted that the cause of the boy's paralysis was a kick by the father, but it is said the boy ran a thorn in his foot last July and this caused paralysis.

Flesher's family and some of his neighbors set up the claim that Flesher is being persecuted and tortured by persons in that neighborhood because he refuses to sell his coal and timber and lease his large acreage of land for oil and gas. It is further stated that they have attempted to poison his cattle and have done many other things to make life miserable for him, in the hope that they could drive him from the neighborhood and get possession of his lands, which are very valuable.

Indeed, the stories told of the deeply laid plot against him, as is the claim by members of his family, include the stoning of his house, the poisoning of his spring, the tearing down of his fences, the destruction of his property, but last but not least—imprisonment in the county jail.

It is worse than the darkest days of the Spanish inquisition and out-rids the daring deeds of robber barons, seeking to wrest his lands and titles from him and force him from the community impoverished and dishonored. It is, indeed, a sad spectacle to see an aged man with hoary locks which should bring respect, subjected to indignities and tortures, which can only arise from a degenerate brain.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS WERE IN THE CITY

President Oscar G. Murray and other officials of the B. & O. railroad passed through this city at 7:40 o'clock Saturday evening. The party was enroute for Baltimore and occupied a special train of nine coaches.

With President Murray were his private secretary, stenographers and clerks. With General Manager Fitzgerald were General Superintendent C. C. Bent, General Superintendent of Motive Power Muhlfeld and Superintendent of Motive Power White and Division Superintendent U. B. Williams, of Grafton. Ohio River Division Superintendent C. E. Bryan made the trip over his division with the Fitzgerald party.

The party were here about 20 minutes, but made no special inspection. While some of the party entered the station house, yet President Murray did not leave his car. It was the intention to make an inspection and go down over the Monongah road, but, owing to the delay in arriving here and the desire to get home for Sunday President Murray found it necessary to proceed direct to Baltimore.

WELCOME GIVEN TO DR. D. L. ASH

Dr. and Mrs. David L. Ash, who moved from this city to Huntington last Saturday, where he has taken the pastorate of the leading Methodist Episcopal church, there, has been most hospitably received by the people of that city, as shown by the following taken from the Huntington Dispatch of the 27th inst.:

"Rev. D. L. Ash and wife were formally and cordially welcomed to the First M. E. church last night in one of the most delightful church receptions ever given in the city. The reception was held in the spacious parlors of the church, and several hundred members of the congregation were present to greet the new minister and his wife. In the receiving line were Rev. and Mrs. D. L. Ash, Mrs. C. M. Davidson, Mrs. Robert Turney, Mrs. U. G. Wriston and Mrs. John Messman. The guests were given a cordial reception and each was introduced to the pastor and his wife.

"A short but enjoyable musical program was rendered by members of the church choir, which is one of the best in the city.

"Rev. D. L. Ash, who is just taking up the work here, has made a very favorable impression upon the members of his congregation, and the indications are that his work here will be crowned with the same gratifying degree of success with which it has been attended elsewhere."
